According to section 42 of the Act on the Processing of Personal Data by the Police (616/2019), the data subject does not have right of access to

- 1) personal data of covert human intelligence sources
- 2) personal data in the Schengen Information System relating to discreet checks, inquiry checks and specific checks
- 3) information concerning the tactical and technical methods of the police, observation data, personal data of covert human intelligence sources or data used for forensic investigation purposes included in the personal data referred to in sections 5–8
- 4) personal data acquired using the intelligence gathering methods in accordance with chapter 5 of the Police Act and chapter 10 of the Coercive Measures Act or pursuant to section 157 of the Act on Electronic Communication Services.

Under section 56 of the Act on the Processing of Personal Data by the Police, the right of access by the data subject does not apply to the personal data processed by the Finnish Security and Intelligence Service pursuant to chapter 7 of the Act on the Processing of Personal Data by the Police.

At the request of the data subject, the Data Protection Ombudsman may check and verify the legality of the above-mentioned personal data concerning the data subject and their processing. However, the Data Protection Ombudsman does not have the right to disclose to the data subject the information received during the verification process on the contents of the register in question. This also means that it is not possible to provide information on whether or not the person is registered at all.

The data subject must submit the above-mentioned requests for right of access and verification in person at the police department, at the office of the controller (National Police Board), or in the Office of the Data Protection Ombudsman and prove his or her identity.
